LILLE THREATENED WITH DESTRUCTION

Fire Fiend Doing Deadly Work on Three Sides of the Village

The village of Lille had a narrow escape from complete destruction on Tuesday afternoon. A heavy north wind drove the forest fires in waves that for a time made the residents begin to feel that all was lost. Many of the villagers packed up their personal effects and either buried them or submerged them in Gold Creek.

The tippie and coal offices were also in great danger but the company had the miners cut down a large cordon of trees. This acted as an effective fire-guard. During the afternoon a special train carried up a hose, wagon and reel and firemen to assist in fighting the fire. However, at night the wind veered and almost all danger was removed.

Next Census in 1911

Ottawa, July 28th.—The next census of Canada will be taken under date of June 1st 1911 and embrace the subjects of population, mortality, agriculture, manufactures, minerals, fisheries and dairy products.

Population will be recorded under the heads of residence and personal description, citizenship, nationality and religion; profession, occupation and trade or means of living; wage-earning and insurance; education and language spoken, and infirmities.

Every person living on the 1st of June will be entered on the schedule of population by name, as a member of a family, institution or household, and together with place of habitation, sex, relationship to head of the family or household, and whether single, married, widowed, divorced or legally separated, the month of birth, year of birth and age at last birthday will also be recorded.

Entries will be made for each person to show the country or place of birth, year of immigration to Canada if born elsewhere, year of naturalization if formerly an alien, and also racial or tribal origin, nationality and religion. Every person of alien birth, who has become a naturalized citizen is a Canadian by nationality; and every British subject with residence in Canada, as well as every native of Canada, who has acquired citizenship by birth or naturalization, is also a Canadian by nationality. But there is no Canadian by racial or tribal origin, unless the Indians are so connected.

Every person having an occupation or trade will be entered for it, but if employed in the census year at some other occupation for part or whole time, he will be so recorded also. If the person is working on own account the entry will be so made. An entry is also required to be made showing where the person is employed, as on farm in woolen mill, at foundry shop, drug store, etc.

Wage earners are to enter to show the number of weeks employed in 1910 at other than chief occupation or trade at other than chief occupation, if any the hours of working time per week at chief occupation, or at other occupation, if any; the total earnings in 1910 as chief occupation; and the rate per hour employed by the hour.

Entries are required to be made for each person showing amount of insurance held at date of the census upon life, as well as against accident or sickness together with the cost of such insurance in the census year.

Under the heading of education a "guage" records will be taken for every person of five years and over, showing the number of months at school in 1910, and if the person can read and write, and the language commonly spoken by each person. The cost of education in college, convent or university, is also called for.

The last question on a schedule of population relates to infirmities. It calls for a record of each person having an infirmity. If blind deaf and dumb, crazy or lunatic, idiot or silly, a record thereof will be made in the proper column, and the age at which the infirmity appeared, is required to be specified.

Gnats and Camels

It's an awful thing for two men to stand up in front of each other in a prize ring and pound each other for a purse of money and a championship, and it is a most despicable thing for a newspaper to publish the details of the pounding; but when two nations, represented by, say a hundred thousand men on each side, proceed to clear the offending earth with steel and mangled bodies for some prize or prize or championship, it is a different thing, and even the school books are filled with the glorious details of the slaughter.

The Reno spectacle was certainly not an edifying one; but it was a small affair compared with the spectacle presented by the armies of two Christian nations blowing each other to pieces for the sake of some prize, no greater, perhaps, in proportion to the number of people involved than the purse for which Johnson and Jeffries fought. Yet we are still waiting for the ministerial associations of the Christian church to protect again a way in the face of actual slaughter. What the Christian church might have done to banish war from the Christian world is a matter of opinion; what the Christian church has not done is a matter of history. The scandalous and humiliating fact is that, after two thousand years of the teaching of Christianity, the great Christian nations are armed for war today as they were never armed before.

It is brutalizing and degrading for Johnson and Jeffries to meet in a ring and pound each other; but multi-Johnson and Jeffries by a hundred thousand, arm them with modern rifles, machine guns and other weapons of destruction, and send them to water the earth with each other's blood, and the thing becomes not only respectable but glorious.

One Who Came

A Memorial Day Story

By CLARISSA MACKIE.

Copyright, 1918, by American Press Association.

She had been looking for him all through the warm spring, and now, late in May, she felt that he must come. Another week would bring the 30th of the month, and Memorial day, with its tender observance of all the beloved dead. She was to creep down her cherished hope of Robert's return.

Robert looked wistfully across the pasture, and tears filled his blue eyes until his lids and pointed ears were a dark blur.

When she had wiped them away some one was coming wearily down the narrow path—some one tall and thin, dressed in a suit of a gray flax hat on his drooping head.

The man did not lift his eyes from the ground, but tramped steadily on, with his gaze fixed on the winding path under his feet. When the path ceased at the fence he looked up and saw Esther gazing at him longingly, lovingly, but there was no recollection in his glance, merely undisguised wonderment.

Esther's radiant smile faded as she searched the handsome face for some sign of recognition. It was Robert Webb, paler, thinner and curiously changed in expression, and yet it was Robert. A sudden terror filled her soul.

"Robert," she cried softly, "don't you know me?"

He stared curiously at her while a slow red burned into his thin cheeks. He lifted the gray hat and showed dark hair streaked plentifully with white.

"I am afraid you have made a mistake," he said in a deep, musical voice that was like Robert's own tones. "My name is Robert, but I am sure I would have remembered you if we had met before. I came to see Mr. Lane. I was directed to take the short cut across the lot from the station. Is this his farm?"

Esther shrank back.

"Yes, this is Mr. Lane's farm. You will find him at the barn. Take the path through the orchard."

With a murmured word of thanks the man replaced his hat, leaped the fence and disappeared in the gathering twilight of the orchard.

When Esther went into the house her fair hair was wet with dew, but her eyes were very bright with the light of the evening lamp.

In the sitting room they were all gathered about the evening lamp. The light fell on the red table cover and was reflected in the corners of the paintings of the room. Mr. Lane was reading the almanac with an interest quickened by a long winter's pursuit of its closely printed pages. Helen and Agatha were chattering.

They all glanced up as Esther entered the room, blinking at the light.

"You'll catch your death out in the dampness, child," remonstrated her mother as Esther sat down in a low rocker beside her. "We've been wishing you'd come in and give us a little music."

"You promised to practice that duet with me, Esther," complained Helen.

"I don't see why you want to run away every night after supper. You can't guess what's happened since you've been gone," she added teasingly.

The color leaped into Esther's pale cheeks. She struggled for a moment with her quivering breath before her words found utterance. "What has happened, Nell?" she asked, with assumed carelessness.

"Nothing at all," interposed Mrs. Lane, smiling, "except that father's tickled to death because he's got some one to help him all summer."

"Who is it?" asked Esther.

"A man who came here tonight. The station master sent him, knowing your father was put to it for help on the farm. He's young and willing, though he's a little out of breath. He's been a soldier, and he wants to have a summer farming it to get back his health again."

"And likewise fill his pocketbook," yawned Farmer Lane, stretching himself luxuriously. "I guess we'll get along as well as may be. He's a fine, pleasant spoken young chap, but he's even a slight of trouble, I take it. His hair's as white as my own. He's coming tomorrow."

"What is his name?" asked Esther in a quizzical tone.

"Robert Munson. Look! like some one I've seen before. Can't think who it is to save my life," said her father, raising and filling his pipe at the mantelshelf.

With a quick movement Esther arose and was gone from the room.

"Father Lane," exclaimed Agatha in a stage whisper, "it's just come to me who this man looks like! He looks enough like Robert Webb to be his own brother."

They cast startled glances at one another. "I declare if he doesn't!" gasped Mrs. Lane at last. "I hope Esther won't notice it. It would upset her terribly, pa."

"That may be," returned Mr. Lane decidedly. "Esther's mother, Mrs. Webb, just two years longer than he was worth. If he'd cured anything for her he'd stayed behind and made a home for her instead of running off and joining the army as if he had no responsibilities at home. Knew better, get used to seeing this new chap around. She's got to get cured of this grieving business, by George!"

The large brown hat struck the table with a force that startled the three women. "The waiter of Angling," who has never had a more enthusiastic disciple than his Majesty.

These words were an expert wielder of the rod, and caught many a fine salmon in the waters of the Dee and the Tweed, but, as old Donald Morgan used to say, His Majesty was "not arduous" enthusiastic; "a description which, we may be sure, Donald Stewart, King George's devoted companion and henchman on many a fishing expedition, would never apply to the present occupant of the throne of England."

"I love a gun," King George confessed, recently. "I am never quite so happy as when I am fishing the pools of the Dee, with the long day before me." And it is while fishing these words in the royal preserve of Aberdeir and Balmoral, remote from courts and the crowds of retinue, that King George spends some of the most delightful days of his life.

Every spring for many years past the King has spent several weeks at Aberdeir indulging in the full in his favorite pastime. Usually with only one companion, Sir Charles Cuthbert, the King's personal valet, a small, two-storey house, Aberdeir Maing, a few yards distant from the ancient castle. Here he leads his simple, primitive life, rising early, faring plainly, and lying entirely for his sport. He usually starts at about ten o'clock in the morning, with his companion and a couple of attendants—Donald Stewart, His Majesty's head gamekeeper, and Arthur Grant, the gillie, have mostly been his companions of the humbler sort—and he devotes the whole day to the red smoking mild cigarettes almost incessantly.

About noon a carriage brings luncheon to the pools where His Majesty is working, and after a smoke and a rest on the bank fishing is resumed as long as the light lasts, when the return for dinner is made. A post prandial cigar and a gossip over the day's sport follow, and then it is early to bed for a good night's rest before the next day's fishing.

It was a few years ago that the King first learned the gentle art of wielding a rod, nearly forty years ago, with his father and John Brown as mentors, and he still recalls his delight at landing his first fish one spring day in the early 'sixties.

Brother's enthusiastic "Guid, Ye'll mak a braw feshier some day, Prince George."

The King, we are told, used an 18-foot, split-oak, steel-cored rod, in preference to the greenheart used by the fisherman, and most of his fish have been with the fly. As a caster he has few equals, and he is an expert in every form of tackle.

Not long ago, it is said, he was on the testing a new form of tackle which had been sent to St. James's Palace by a fisherman from Scotland. He actually left a levee which was in progress in order to gratify his curiosity.

The weather has no terrors for His Majesty, and during one terrible week of hardships, frosts, and howling gales he went out all day at Aberdeir, and counted himself amply rewarded when, at the end of the week, he crested a beauty of a fly, with the very last cast of the day.

An Ancient Pension.

A curious revelation regarding the origin of a $150,000 pension which falls to the Lord Mayor of Dublin was made in reply to a question asked in the House of Commons the other day.

It was explained that the pension was granted in consideration of services rendered to Charles II. The sum in question is a perpetual annuity granted by the Merry Monarch to the mayor of the day and his successors, for eminent services rendered at the time of the Restoration. For many years it carried with it the rank of captain in the army, with its corresponding privileges, regarding command and so forth. The latter privileges have become obsolete, and the Lord Mayor of Dublin performs no military services; but the annuity is still paid out of the Consolidated Fund.

The Discovery of Blotting-Paper.

Blotting-paper was discovered purely by accident. Some ordinary paper was being made one day at a mill in Berkshire, when a careless workman forgot to put in the sizing material.

The whole of the paper made was regarded as useless. The paper was sent to the mill desired to write a note shortly afterwards, and he took a piece of waste paper, thinking it was good enough for the purpose. To his intense annoyance the ink spread all over the paper. Suddenly there flashed over his mind the thought that this paper would do instead of sand for drying ink, and he at once decided to make a "blotting" paper. There was such a big demand that the mill ceased to make ordinary paper and was soon occupied in making blotting paper, the use of which spread to all countries.

The Tail of a Wolf.

The wolf carries its tail hanging down because in that position it is less conspicuous and better eludes detection. A family of wolves playing together undisturbed occasionally carry their tails curled upward.

Analysis of a Tear.

The chief element in the composition of a tear is water, but with many are associated minute proportions of soda, phosphate of lime, phosphate of soda and mucus, and when seen under the microscope a tear after evaporation leaves a very small flat residue, owing to the salines forming themselves into lengthened cross lines.

Elephants in Liberia.

The virgin forests of Liberia contain thousands of elephants.

KING AS AN ANGLER.

His Majesty is an Enthusiastic Wielder of the Rod.

If Isank Walton could be re-incarnated it is quite certain that King George would have no greater admirer of the "Father of Angling," who has never had a more enthusiastic disciple than his Majesty.

These words were an expert wielder of the rod, and caught many a fine salmon in the waters of the Dee and the Tweed, but, as old Donald Morgan used to say, His Majesty was "not arduous" enthusiastic; "a description which, we may be sure, Donald Stewart, King George's devoted companion and henchman on many a fishing expedition, would never apply to the present occupant of the throne of England."

Calcutta's Population

The Statesman, in estimating the coming census, shows that Calcutta is very much like London in that it possesses an enormously larger population by day than by night. Like London, too, this day population has increased rapidly since the middle of the 19th century. In 1881, it numbered 170,133; in 1891 it was over 300,000; and today it is probably, says the Statesman, 500,000 more. It is, of course, a statistical misrepresentation the corporation are proposing to hold a "day census" shortly after the taking of the general one—Westminster Gazette.

A Sheffield tenant who had been invited out to dinner was asked to sing and although he had no music with him and was nearly as hoarse as a frog, the result of a bad cold, he consented to try, but broke down. "Never mind, lad," said an elderly guest, trying to cheer him up, "never mind the breakdown, for that's done thy best; but 't' fallen as asked thee 't' sing owt' I be taken out and shot."

In the sixteenth century clothes were sent from all parts of France to be washed in Holland, where the water of the canals was supposed to have special cleansing properties. The cost of transport was about ten francs greater in those days than at present.

A British expedition in the Congo Free State received much more aid from the natives than it expected, the natives bringing a large elephant to help move its legs and trunk.

Zama-Buk is antiseptic; kills all poison in wounds, whether from barbed wire fence, or insect stings. Soothes itching feet and blistered hands, heals baby's chafed places; cools sunburn patches, and prevents freckles. No mother should be without it. Purely herbal in its composition, Zama-Buk is far superior to the ordinary ointments containing animal oils and fats, and mineral coloring matter. All druggists and stores sell Zama-Buk, but avoid harmful substitutes.

FIRES UNDER CONTROL

The united assistance of the coal companies' men and the town fire brigade have brought at last our threatening forest fires to a position of retreat.

The irretrievable wealth that has been lost is a direct loss to the country. The loss of personal property and homes is of necessity an immediate one, but the public loss, of our public domains is one that is not felt until a stringency is noted in the lumber market and the price goes soaring.

We congratulate the coal companies, fire chief Graham and corporal Goodrich for the splendid work volunteered in subduing the fire fiend.

EDITORIAL NOTES

Fire fighting is becoming popular in Coleman.

These Northern lights are getting too common.

What next? Heat from the aldermanic candidates.

We would call the sanitary inspector's attention to two cases of municipal fever.

World-wide fight experts figure that the next combat will be between two white men, viz., John Bull and the Kaiser. John is the favorite.

We are glad to note that the report sent out that Grand Forks was destroyed by fire, is unfounded. Grand Forks is still doing business and much alive.

Several mottos have been ordered for the council chamber for the instruction of the new council. One of them reads: "A dollar in the treasury is worth 100 cents."

Arrangements should soon be made for Sir Wilfrid's reception. A public meeting might be called and committees selected. This would make the reception one of a general character.

A MESSAGE FROM THE EAST

Some friend has sent us a copy of "The Miner," a bright little paper published in the new town of Coleman, Alberta.

We notice a report of a very successful Dominion Day celebration, when a lengthy programme of athletic sports was carried out. At this celebration Mr. Fred Cardno, a former Senforth boy, and brother of the Messrs Cardno brothers, acted as judge, and is highly complimented on the manner in which he did his part. Mr. Cardno, we believe, is engaged in the hardware business in Coleman, and we are pleased to learn that he has very hopeful prospects.—The Huron Expositor.

Sufferers of the nerves, whether induced by violent exercise or injury, are quickly relieved by the free application of Chamberlain's Liniment. The Man With A Millstone About His Neck

The millstone is a lack of special training. It holds one man down to hard work and small wages while others, properly trained, go ahead. But every man and woman who is laboring under such a burden can easily rise to a better position and increased earnings and can find out how for the asking.

To find out how, simply write the I. C. S., stating the position you wish to gain. In return, an institution with 17 years of successful experience in training thousands of others for advancement will tell you how it can fit YOU for a better-paying position. No risk to run. No books to buy. Isn't such a chance for advancement worth this much to you?

Butter! Butter!!

Why do so many people buy table Butter from us? Because we sell the best that can be procured. We have two sources of supply. One is The Trimble Creamery Co., of Red Deer, whose product is acknowledged to be superior to that of any other private creamery in the province. Our price for this per pound is 35c.

The other source of supply is The Provincial Government Creamery, at Red Deer, whose product in a recent test seems the highest possible in point of excellence, viz., 100 per cent.

We submit an extract from "The News," of Red Deer, dated July 13, 1910: "Mr. Markor, the dairy commissioner for Alberta, in writing the secretary of the Red Deer Creamery, June 30th, congratulates the patrons and the buttermaker on 100 per cent. first grade for the week previous, and the practical argument is shown in rate of advance, which is 38 cents per hundred pounds higher than the approximate average selling price of all the creameries.

The memorandum of grading mentioned is:

	1st grade	2nd grade
Average %
All creameries	81.17	18.83
Highest	100.00
Lowest	28.00	71.00
Red Deer	100.00

This is something for Red Deer Creamery to be proud of.

Our price for this perfect Butter is 40c or two pounds for 75c

We also have Dairy Butter, at per pound 25c

Irrigation Convention to be Held at Kamloops

At the irrigation convention that will be held at Kamloops at the beginning of August there will be gathered together many men to whom the subject of irrigation has a keen interest. Hon. Clifford Sifton, chairman of the Canadian conservation commission, has been invited to attend. R. H. Campbell, superintendent of forestry, Ottawa, will be present. Premier McBride and Hon. Thos. Taylor will be in attendance, as will also Martin Burrell, M. P.; R. B. Bennett, K. C., and Wm. Pearce of the C. P. R. services, Calgary. Prof. Etcheverry, of the department of agriculture, university of California, will read a paper on a practical subject and will deliver a lecture in the evening, illustrated by lantern slides. Charles Wilson, K. C., has been asked to read a paper on the new water legislation and there is promise that, in point of interest, the convention this year will be most successful. There is a marked interest manifested in the event and most of the large irrigation companies will send delegates to the gathering and the various other bodies entitled to representation will send delegates.

Although the first convention of the association was held at Calgary only three years ago, the work of the conventions has shown results and much has been done to advance the principle of irrigation and a closely allied subject, the conservation of water. With respect to the latter, it may be pointed out that at convention at Lethbridge last year a resolution was adopted covering the east slope of the Rocky mountains in order to prevent the deforestation of that area and the consequent rapid melting of snow at the headwaters of the mountain streams, causing destructive floods and water waste. The government has done as requested in this instance and the result will be the permanent conservation of the natural water supply in that area.

At previous conventions certain legislation has been secured for, and other steps taken to assure the advancement of irrigation and a fair apportionment of water to users, with the result that good has come of the recommendations, for the provincial and federal government, have given evidence that they recognize that when a number of practical irrigationists, representing three important provinces, get to and decide that a certain course is advisable, which is in effect, expert counsel is being offered and the recommendations carry weight. This year the convention will have the working of the new water act under consideration and the work of the convention in this regard will have its effect with the board of water commissioners who are carrying out the provisions of the measure. Altogether, there is promise of the sessions of the convention being replete with interest, not only to British Columbians but to irrigationists in Alberta and Saskatchewan.

The visiting delegates will be shown orchards and farms in the vicinity where irrigation has long been practiced and others in the early stages of development. All that is needed to make the convention the success it should be is a large and representative attendance and the indications point to this want being filled. Apart from the work of the sessions, visitors will find Kamloops an attractive city, with the rolling hills, the great navigable waterways and the thousands of acres of valley lands in the hands of irrigation companies. It is hoped that every body entitled to send delegates will not fail to participate in this, the fourth annual convention of the Western Canada Irrigation association.

THE JULY ROD AND GUN

Fascinating is the best description that can be given of the opening article, Caneing on Lake Superior," appearing in the July number of Rod and Gun in Canada, published by W. J. Taylor Ltd., Woodstock, Ont. The writer and a companion, despite the doleful predictions of their friends, planned and carried out a canoe trip along the northern shore of Lake Superior and thoroughly enjoyed their holiday. They hugged the shore carefully except on one occasion when the temptation to make a short cut across a bay proved irresistible. At the end of the experiment they shook hands and promised each other not to do it again. This will convey to readers far better than a long description, an idea of their experiences. There are many other articles, every one appealing to those interested in some phase of outdoor life, and the whole forming a number no sportsman should miss.

The Doctor's Answers

By Dr. Lewis Baker.

The questions answered below are general in character; the symptoms or diseases are given and the answering further advice from, may be obtained from the doctor, who will be glad to answer any question you may have. If you are unable to obtain any of the answers, please write to your regular doctor, or to some prominent large drug store which is sure to be well stocked.

Arthur F.—I am quite grateful for your kind words, and am glad to know you tried the prescription for stomach disorders. A good way to treat catarrh at home is: To a pint of warm water add a teaspoonful of salt, stir well, and drink it. Repeat this three or four times a day. Blood treatment should also be taken and for this purpose try: Fid. ext. compound 1 oz., compound fluid balmwort 1 oz., fid. ext. bala. 1 oz., aromatic elixir 1 oz. Mix, and take a teaspoonful before or after meals and at bedtime.

Alice G.—Use a teaspoonful of borax added to a pint of warm water for sore and inflamed eyes; wash twice daily.

Sam K.—I have frequently given the following formula for such cases as yours. It is a thorough, powerful tonic and builder and perfectly harmless to the system even if used in large quantities: Compound syrup of hypophosphites 4 oz., tincture cadmate 1 oz., mix, shake well and take a teaspoonful before meals to improve the appetite and at bedtime. This improves the blood, makes pink cheeks and lips and greater nerve control for men, women or children.

Eugene—Yes, I know a very thorough and reliable remedy for eczema, dandruff, itching scalp, falling hair, etc. Druggists do not generally have it stock, but I will give the name. It is plain yellow mineral. It costs 20 cents for a four-ounce jar.

Metal Holders for Tumblers

Metal holders for tumblers by which water may be heated to a desired degree by electricity, have been invented for the use of dentists and barbers.

The flies that are now in your kitchen and dining-room were probably feasting on some indescribable nastiness less than an hour ago, and as a single fly carries many thousands of disease germs attached to its hairy body, it is the duty of every householder to assist in exterminating this worst enemy of the human race. Wilson's Fly Pads kill flies in such immense quantities as cannot be approached by any other fly killer.

To the question, "How old are the Niagara Falls?" geologists have returned replies varying by tens of thousands of years. At first it was estimated that the Niagara river carried into existence through changes in the level of the land around the great falls about 55,000 years ago. Later this was reduced to 40,000 years, and still later increased the estimate again to 35,000 years, and still later other scientists lowered it to about 9,000 years.

There were 2,412 fatalities in the coal mines of the United States last year as against 2,450 the year before, although about ten per cent more coal was mined. In 1907 3,125 men were killed.

Had Eczema on Legs for Twenty Years

Thinks no One Could Have It Worse—Was Cured By DR. CHASE'S OINTMENT

There are plenty of more fatal diseases than eczema, but not many which cause more downright suffering. The tendency of eczema is to spread over the body is annoying and disgusting, and the itching—the almost constant and persistent itching—nearly drives a person crazy.

You can scarcely wonder that people are enthusiastic over Dr. Chase's Ointment, when it brings them prompt relief and actually cures itching, tormenting eczema. And if you could read a few letters from people who receive from cured ones you would not be long in deciding what treatment to apply for eczema, salt rheum and similar skin diseases.

Mr. Fred W. Clark, Petworth Adjoining Co., Ont., writes: "My mother had eczema in both legs for about 20 years. She died for a long time and to bedwetting, you cannot expect it to be healthy, strong and hearty. Try the use of comp. fluid balmwort. A child of 6 should be given 10 drops on sugar or in water after meals and between meals and at bedtime. The symptoms may increase at first, but gradually a cure will ensue.

Mr. X.—You want a good prescription to act on baby's bowels, but not straining and pain; and some relief. This prescription can be given: Aromatic fluid balmwort 1 oz., compound elixir 1 oz., aromatic syrup 3 oz., give an infant 6 to 10 drops, 3 to 4 times daily, or a half teaspoonful at night. Increase the dose according to age, or condition, until the bowels are regular.

Agnes M.—Since you received so much help from my previous prescription, I am giving you a prescription which will increase your flesh and round out your figure, bring the playfulness back that goes with a healthy child. Give this: Compound elixir 1 oz., aromatic syrup 3 oz., give an infant 6 to 10 drops, 3 to 4 times daily, or a half teaspoonful at night. Increase the dose according to age, or condition, until the bowels are regular.

Christopher—You are a good doctor. I have been using your Compound Elixir for some time, and it has done me a great deal of good. I feel much better, and my appetite is improved. I will continue to use it.

William, said the teacher, "what is a cape?" "A cape is land extending into the sea."

"Correct, William, define a gulf."

"A gulf is water extending into the land."

"Good, Christopher, to a small eager-looking boy, 'what is a mountain?'"

Christopher shot up from his seat so suddenly as to startle the teacher, and promptly responded: "A mountain is land extending into the sea."

Dysentery corrodes the linings and specially acts away the lining, bringing about dangerous conditions that may cause death. Dr. J. D. Kellogg's Dysentery Cordial clears the intestinal canals of the germs that cause the inflammation, and by protecting the inflamed surface, it brings about a return to healthy condition. Those subject to dysentery should not be without this simple yet powerful remedy.

"Henry, how do you like my new hat?"

"Well, dear, to tell you the truth—"

"Stop right there! If you are going to talk that way about it, Henry, I don't want it!"—Chicago.

Barton—"Is it true that you are engaged to Miss Richlight?"

Ardup—Yes; and she's awfully exacting. She says I've got to give up smoking and drinking when we are married.

Barton—Hugh Why don't you break off the engagement?"

Ardup—Can afford to. If I don't marry I'll have to give up eating as well as go to work.

The Fox of Indigestion.—Indigestion is a common ailment and few are free from it. It is a most distressing complaint and often the suffering attendant is not aware of the cause. The very best remedy is Parmelee's Vegetable Pills taken according to directions. They regulate the regular action of the stomach and restore healthy action. For many years they have been a standard remedy for dyspepsia and indigestion and are highly esteemed for their qualities.

HOW IT CAME ABOUT.

Mrs. Scott-Raff was Surprised at Gift of Greek Theatre.

The story of the inception of the scheme which resulted in the building of the Margaret Eaton School of Liberal Education, and the address of the Greek Theatre, has been told in the columns of the Miner, and is no longer a secret, and is a story of the life of the late Mr. Timothy Eaton, and the time was the late weeks in August, 1903. Mrs. Scott-Raff, then director of the physical culture department in connection with Victoria College, was a guest in the house. She had long been discouraged at the inadequate opportunities that offered to give effect to the spirit of her teaching and the need of a genuine temple dedicated to the cultivation of the ideas of "sweetness and light."

One day she was approached by Mrs. Eaton, who questioned her, and pressed her for a reply.

"You are not happy," she said. "Why tell me why?"

"Because I want what I cannot have, a school."

Then she exclaimed Mrs. Eaton, then, and added: "That is not so difficult. I'll ask father."

Oh, but I want a school no one else will ever give me, said Mrs. Raff. "I want a school like the Greek Parthenon—nothing else will do; a school like the Parthenon! No one will ever give me that."

But Mrs. Eaton was not so sure. "But my father," she repeated, confidently.

The following day in her morning stroll in the depths of the forest, Mrs. Raff was hailed by her host, who was sitting alone on a stump.

"Raff!" he called, using the name as a means of showing comradeship.

"Raff! Come here; I want you." And then in an encouraging voice, "Mother told me that you were a school."

Mrs. Raff's heart beat high. "Yes, Mr. Eaton," she answered.

"But I will never give me, I want a school like the Greek Parthenon."

There was a space of silence between them.

Then the kind, quiet voice proceeded: "If I give you such a school as you want, I promise me to stay with it—always."

Another silence ensued, the merchant prince watching the new young beauty as she wrestled with the phantom of the future. Then solemnly she replied: "I will stay."

Mr. Eaton became all business as they went to the bank.

"You are leaving for Owen Sound tomorrow?"

"Yes."

"Go home by way of Toronto. See Chancellor and get the plan of the school, and then go ahead; choose your land, engage an architect, on his advice get your plans—your money."

The following day saw Mrs. Raff exploring the neighborhood of Victoria Park, and the bank.

STOP POISONING YOURSELF

Headaches and Neuragic Pains Promptly Cured by "Fruit-a-tives."

Where there are frequent attacks of Neuralgia and Headaches, there is always Constipation, Weakness of the Kidneys and Blood Poisoning.

Non-action of the bowels compels the blood to absorb foul matter which should have passed from the body.

Weak Kidneys fail to filter from the blood the necessary amount of waste.

The blood thus becomes poisoned and it is this poisoned blood which hurts the nerves and causes Neuragic and Headaches.

"Fruit-a-tives," made from fruit juices, acts on the bowels and kidneys and is the greatest blood purifying medicine in the world.

"Fruit-a-tives" is sold by all dealers at 50c a box, 6 for $2.50, or ten for $4.50, or may be obtained from Fruit-a-tives, Limited, Ottawa.

ANATANTIC ANTISEPTIC SHAVING

Not only is Cuticura Soap, assisted by Cuticura Ointment, unrivalled for removing dirt and grease from the skin and hair, but it is a luxury for shampooing, bathing and especially for shaving. It possesses in moderation the most perfect of all antiseptic and antiseptic properties of Cuticura Ointment, while supplying a rich and fragrant lather. After shaving, and before bathing the face, gently anoint the shaved parts with a bit of Cuticura Ointment. This method renders frequent shaving a pleasure and commends itself to men with tender, easily irritated skin, and as a preventive of irritation and inflammation of the hair glands which, if neglected, often lead to obstinate and disfiguring eruptions.

It goes without saying that two women never do.

A Sure Corrective of Flatulency.—When the undigested food lies in the stomach it throws off gases causing belching and oppression in the stomachic region. The belching or eructation is offensive and the only way to prevent them is to restore the stomach to proper action. Parmelee's Vegetable Pills will do this. Simple directions for their use are given on the wrapper, often tend to obviate the necessity to effect a cure.

Business is as repulsive to inattention as a woman with a husband too young for her.

An Oil Without Alcohol.—Some oils and many medicines have alcohol as a prominent ingredient. A judicious remedy of six essential oils, and the famous Dr. Thomas' Electric Oil, and there is no alcohol in it, so that it can be used by the sick. There is no medicinal oil compounded that can equal this oil in its preventive and healing power.

It takes a judge of human nature to keep right, laugh bright, and sit tight.

AUTHOR OF "GINN'S BABY."

Forty Years Ago Edward Jenkins Was the Kipling of His Day.

One of the most distinguished sons of the Montreal High School passed off the roll by the death in London of Edward Jenkins, Esq., politician, humorist, author and editor, creator of the immortal "Ginn's Baby." Some forty years ago, when Jenkins was so much in the limelight in the literary world that his position in the sphere of letters at that time had been compared to that of Rudyard Kipling therein today. His style had the Kipling touch, and both men had close connection with India. Mr. Jenkins was born at Bangalore, India, in July, 1838, his father being Rev. Dr. John Jenkins, so long pastor of St. Paul's Presbyterian Church, Montreal. He came to Canada with his parents at an early age and was educated at the Montreal High School and McGill University. Then, after a course at the University of Toronto, he was called to the Bar at Lincoln's Inn, in 1864, and had a most remarkable career in the years which followed. He was counsel for the coolies on the Demerara Coolie Commission of 1870; agent-general for Canada in 1870; a member of the royal commission on copyright in 1876-77; and about that time wrote his famous novel, entitled "Ginn's Baby," which he will be remembered when his political career has been forgotten. Among his other political works were "The Right to Barm," "The Coolie," "Little George," "The Devil's Chain," "Barney Geoghegan," and "Beginning his Life as a Gladstonian Liberal" he was by turns an Independent Liberal and Conservative, and was a member of the House of Commons. He represented the city of Dundee, Scotland, as a Radical from 1874 to 1880, but was then defeated, and though he sought the suff
